

CAREERS IN THE MAKING

MINE ENGINEERING STUDENT

UNIVERSITY OF BRITISH COLUMBIA (UBC) MINE ENGINEERING STUDENT LUCAS PERRON HAS BEEN WORKING AT VICTORIA'S EAGLE GOLD MINE since early June to gain valuable work experience in his field of study prior to graduating.

In his role as one of four students at site this summer, Lucas helped the Victoria team with the day-to-day design and implementation of mine plans, inspections and data entry. During one rotation earlier this summer, he assisted with the design of the mine's drill and blast patterns.

"The most valuable thing I'll take away from my time at the Eagle Gold Mine this summer is the valuable experience I've gained in the field of work I find super engaging and interesting," says Lucas. "I have a new appreciation for how important team work and communication is in the successful execution of day-to-day operations at a mine site."

This Fall, Lucas will continue to work at the Eagle Gold Mine, while completing his last required credit online from UBC. He then plans to continue in mining operations to gain further experience with a future goal of transitioning to project development.

"I would highly recommend Victoria Gold as an employer to any engineering student," continues Lucas. "The team Victoria has assembled at the Eagle Gold Mine is a pleasure to work with. They are hardworking, motivated and always ready and eager to help out a student like myself."
